“Sexual Ableism and Intellectual Disability”

Thursday, October 13, 4 pm
Student Union 210

In Illinois, a young adult woman with an intellectual disability petitioned the court to stop an involuntary sterilization procedure. This talk considers the desire of disabled people to parent as a legitimate expression, outside of discriminatory assessments of parental appropriateness.

Michael Gill is an assistant professor of Disability Studies in the School of Education at Syracuse University. He is the author of Already Doing It: Intellectual Disability and Sexual Agency (University of Minnesota Press, 2015).

Co-sponsored by the Humanities Institute Disability Studies Research Workshop. This event is free, open to the public, and wheelchair accessible. ASL available upon request. Please contact www.disabilitystudies.buffalo.edu/contact-us.php.
