War and Disability: Perspectives from History

Friday, November 9th
4-6pm, 532 Park Hall

Hosted by: Prof. Michael Rembis (Director, Center for Disability Studies) and Prof. David Gerber (Director emeritus)

Arguably the largest producer of disability in human history, war has become the topic of research for disability studies scholars around the world. Please join Profs. Rembis and Gerber for an interactive discussion and visual presentation that will explore war and disability from the American Civil War to the recent wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.
